

Department of Education, London, SW1

Formed on May 12th 2010, the Department for Education is responsible for education across the UK. The Great Smith Street site is one of 12 national offices housing the hundreds or personnel who work across the department.

BRAC were appointed as Principal Contractor to strip out and fully refurbish the commercial kitchen facilities of the Great Smith Street site. The works included a full strip out, supplying and fitting all kitchen facilities, ovens, extractors and pot wash areas.

This challenging project involved dealing with the complexities of site management, deliveries, waste clearance and health and safety in a busy London location and within a site that remained operative and open to personnel and visitors throughout the contract. BRAC worked closely with the client management team to find intelligent working strategies to ensure fast, on budget delivery whilst protecting the welfare of the site's inhabitants.

These strategies included well planned delivery, collection and clearance policies, flexible working times and stringent dust and noise control measures to ensure the comfort and safety of those on site.

The result was a state of the art turnkey commercial kitchen installation, delivered to the client's complete satisfaction, within budgetary parameters, and to a precise 10 week turnaround.

Project duration: 10 weeks

Project Value: £350k

"BRAC met our expectations with high quality workmanship and careful project management."
